Taking the Lead to Support Innovative Instructional Models

Innovation in instruction is not just about implementing a new lesson idea. It's also about seeing and understanding what's happening in your school and collaborating with colleagues to improve both their and your practice.

Taking the Lead to Support Innovative Instructional Models is ISTE U's premier online professional learning course that homes in on best practices in coaching, with a focus on student-centered instruction and integrating technology into classroom activities.

Through this course, educators will:

- Discover tools to implement personalized and blended learning models.

- Learn how to design a student-centered classroom.

- Use templates and protocols to launch an effective mentor-to-teacher relationship.

- Learn to support teachers through 10 management considerations.
